

APS Course "On the Road"

August 10-11, 2010 • Prior to APS StampShow
Richmond Marriott • Richmond, VA

Computers and Collecting with Barbara Boal, Editor of the American Philatelist

You will enjoy two days of tips and fun as you learn how to incorporate the computer with collecting — explore and learn about software, scanning, designing exhibit pages, personalized album pages or newsletters, and enhancing scans and digital images. The instructor will be in touch with students prior to the course to learn of specific needs that the course can address. Students will receive handouts, hands-on instruction, and other digitally-based resources. Some basic knowledge of computer use is necessary to receive the most benefit from this course. We will be working on a PC, but most of the information easily translates to the Mac. A computer is not necessary, but to play along, bring your laptop!

Barb Boal joined the APS staff in 1981 in the publications office. She was appointed design manager in 1985 by AP Editor, Bill Welch. From August 1990 to October 2001, she served as managing editor, working with two different printers in the layout, design, and production of our magazines. She became Editor in 2002 and has learned by experience all the necessary software applications as the AP magazine was produced completely with computers. She has co-taught this course for two years at the APS Summer Seminar.
